Wednesday, May 26. 1714.

Hague, June 1.

MR. Harley came back hither last Tuesday from Rotterdam, with all his Retinue: The Reason of his Return is said to be, that by the Letters from the Court of England of the 25th of May, he was informed that the Lord Paget would speedily set out from London for the Court of Hanover, and that he should wait for his Lordship's Arrival here, before he go over to England.

Our Chambers of Admiralty have resolved to cause 32 Men of War to be built, in the Room of old ones which are to be Sold; that this State may be in the better Condition at all times to fit out at any Emergency a considerable Fleet.

The Government of the Bolduc being vacant by the Death of Baron Obdam, the Earl of Albemarle and M. Hompesch solicited it each for himself. The Matter came before the States General; but at the Time it was proposed to Deliberation, a Letter arrived from Count Tilly, by which that General besought their High Mightinesses to confer that Government on him, as being the eldest General and Commander in Chief of the Troops of this State. The Question being put to the Vote, three Provinces, viz. Utrecht, Groningen, and Friseland were for Count Tilly, and three, viz. Gelder, Holland, and Over-Issel for the Earl of Albemarle, and Zealand for General Hompesch. This last Province refusing to give any other Vote, or to decide between the other two Candidates, Lots were cast, and it fell to Count Tilly. By this means his Government of Namur becoming vacant, 'tis thought 'twill be given to Count Hompesch instead of that of Luxembourg which he now has; so that the Earl of Albemarle must be content still with that of Tournay.

Prince Kurakin is preparing to go back from hence very speedily to the Congress at Brunswick, having received Advice that M. Friesendorff, Envoy of Sweden, is at length gone thither from Hanover, where he had been for some time. The Counts Fleming and Wakkerbart, Ministers of the King of Poland, were daily expected at the Congress; after whose Arrival the Conferences will begin.

Letters from Hamburg of the 20th of May relate, that according to the last Advices from Copenhagen, a Squadron of 7 Danish Ships of the Line, commanded by Commodore Thomson, waited only for a fair Wind to sail with 2 Russian Men of War, bought in Holland, for Peterbourg, in order to join the Czar's Fleet; and that soon after, the principal Danish Fleet, consisting of 24 Ships of the Line, will put to Sea.

'Tis advised from Peterbourg the 31st of April, that the Governour of Siberia was arrived there, and had given an Account, that since the Year 1711 three Heathen Princes of Siberia have embraced the Christian Faith, as also 6000

Tatars, who were all baptized by Russian Priests: He says the three new baptized Princes alledged for the Motive of their Conversion, the great Progress of his Czarian Majesty's Arms against his Enemies, which was confirmed to them by so many thousand Swedes as are Prisoners in Siberia, whence they could not but conclude that the God whom the Czar adores is the True God, seeing he assists and protects him so visibly, and therefore they would worship the same God.

They write from Berlin the 26th of May, that Baron Spaur and the Count de Rotenbourg seeing their Remonstrances and Temptations were useless at that Court, to get the Czar forced to Peace by Arms, have changed their Language, and insist now only on his Prussian Majesty's using his good and powerful Offices with the Czar. These Advices add, that in June the King of Prussia will review his Troops which are quartered in the Countries of Magdebourg and Halberstadt, and towards the End of the Month will set out for Westphalia and the Country of Cleves. The Margrave Albert, and under him Field-Marshal Count Wartenleben, are to have the Care of the Regency during his Majesty's Absence.
